

ARCHIVE SHARK TANK

BY: TOMAS GARCIA

MY IDEA

My idea is to create memory of all of my journey playing golf, for this what i wat to do is take all of the medals and hang them on the roof as Annette Messenger did in one of her expositions, with the medals i want to include some papers, this are going to be the reply of the inscription to the tournaments, and the ones that say that i dindnt pass i am going to do a black out and i will fill it out with something that i would wish that the email said. On the floor i wil take my golf clubs and i will write the word HAPPY.

REFERENCES

- Annette message - Esthetic reference

REFERENCES

BLACK OUT – CONCEPTUAL REFERENCE

How do events from our childhood shape our adult preferences?

I recently studied this question using a classic American example: baseball. I tested how a team's performance at every age of our childhood affects which team we root for as adults. From Facebook's publicly available advertising platform, I downloaded data on how many fans every baseball team has, broken out by gender and age. (Facebook estimates whether someone is a fan of a team based on both "likes" and posts.)

This data is not perfect, but it does correlate pretty well with previous polling. According to Facebook, the most popular teams are the Yankees, Red Sox, Mets, Cardinals and Braves; there are 1.65 Yankees fans for every Mets fan.

Facebook data can reveal patterns that polls generally do not have large enough sample sizes to detect. For example, Facebook tells us that among men, the ratio of Yankees fans to Mets fans increases exponentially depending on when those men were born.

How do events from our childhood shape our adult preferences?

I recently studied this question using a classic American example: baseball. I tested how a team's performance at every age of our childhood affects which team we root for as adults. From Facebook's publicly available advertising platform, I downloaded data on how many fans every baseball team has, broken out by gender and age. (Facebook estimates whether someone is a fan of a team based on both "likes" and posts.)

This data is not perfect, but it does correlate pretty well with previous polling. According to Facebook, the most popular teams are the Yankees, Red Sox, Mets, Cardinals and Braves; there are 1.65 Yankees fans for every Mets fan.

Facebook data can reveal patterns that polls generally do not have large enough sample sizes to detect. For example, Facebook tells us that among men, the ratio of Yankees fans to Mets fans increases exponentially depending on when those men were born.

REFERENCE

- Conceptual reference – Joaquin sorolla

SKETCH

In this sketch we can see that the medals and the black out papers are hanging in the roof, this is the idea i took from annete messenger, on the floor we can see some golf clubs that are forming the word HAPPY, the conceptual idea taken from Joaquin Sorolla.

MATERIALS

MEDALS

GOLF CLUBS

BLACK OUT

WHY YOU SHOULD BUY MY PROYECT?